

NOVA Series Manual Addressing Device Nova-HAM

Manual Addressing Unit is used for assigning or changing addresses to the devices, to select the level and operating mode and to read the existing settings and values in the fire detection loop with its easy operation and stylish design. The programming unit is connected to the devices via an adapter or a special cable. With the buttons on it, addresses are assigned and changed. LCD shows basic information on the device.

Recommended Battery: It features 9V 600mA.

For environmental awareness and battery saving, it is recommended to use adapter head and power supply in desktop type operating case.

Optionally, you can use NOVA-HAM device with 9V. adaptor

